Hist. & Geneal. of the Carpenter Family in America from the settlement of Prov., R.I. 1637-1901
 "One Branch of the Miner Family + 50 Other Allied Lines" by Lillian Lounsberry (Miner) Selleck - 1928.

at Prov. at Providence on Friday May 11, 1635 & arrived in May 11, 1635 & then to Prov., June 24, 1635, going first to Kingham, & then to Prov., when we arrived April 25, 1636. (from a memo. found among old papers of the Arnold family) Evidently a mistake of one year in these dates, as they at was Thursday (not Friday) and there was no settlement at Prov. so early as April 1636. Roger Williams landed there in June 1636.

m. - Margaret , dau. of *(Nunc. will)

Plate 108 (her will)*

b. ; d. /bur. Oct. or Nov. 1621, Claydon

His name first appears in Claydon records, 28 July 1577, at bap. of son Peter. He was one of the appraisers of the est. of Thomas Boreman, 2 May 1580. In a Lay Subsidy list for Claydon, 7th James I (1610) he was the 1st of only two named, the other being Matthew Clerke - their tax was the same, iis. viiid., in terris (lands). Apparently owned in his own right the prop. he occupied, as he willed it to dau. Julian & her heirs. The ordinary mode of land tenure in England being by lease from the Lord of the manor, generally for lengthy term of yrs., or for life, the eldest so usually succeeding to the est. on death of his fa., when the lease was renewed. Felix Carter, thus, was one of two exceptions among Claydon land-holders & prob. one of the richer men in the village. His nuncupative will, 29 May 1619; his inventory taken 31 May 1619, incl. a good share in money, called "a debte in the hands of Franncys Ward by specialty". The amt. of his inv. exceeded considerably the others of families found there. He was described as yeoman. Widow's will, 14 Oct. 1621, proved 6 Apr. 1624; her inventory taken 12 Nov. 1621.

However, he must have overcome this refusal bef. long as in less than 2 yrs. we find him making purchases of land in the town limits. Bef. 1700 he became 1 of the largest landholders on the vineyard. He rarely sold any portion of his various acquisitions of all of it, practically, became the heritage of his heirs.

The Chick Family

It would seem that all the early people with the surname Chick in New England may be descended from the one Thomas Chick, of the Berwick-Kittery area of Maine. This simplified supposition chart may help give some impression of the beginning of the family.

This chart is a way to see, graphically, the possible family growth, from Thomas in 1666, until the time of the U. S. Census in the year 1790, and was compiled from the best records that we have available. Much can be backed up with proof-some, only by the best circumstantial evidence.

Charts are not for everyone, and we tried to simplify this one as much as possible. To read the chart, start at the earliest date and ancestor on the left and follow the lines connecting the families up to the 1790 Census on the right. Where the lines do not connect, there is no relationship, where they do, there is good evidence that the relationship is on fairly firm ground. If anyone, should disagree with the chart, we would like to know why, and what information or records they have of proof, so that we may correct any error we may have made.

We are seeking any information, whatsoever, on the Chick Family from the earliest days in this country, through the intervening years, up to and including records of today. Any contribution of information, be it a single fact, or someone's complete line, will be very welcome and will contribute to a more complete Chick Family History. We hope some of you will be curious and interested and will help solve some of the problems that do exist. Please help! If you would like an answer, please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope. We will, in cases where it is agreed upon, exchange information on a we pay our postage-you pay yours, basis. Please contact either my brother or myself, at the addresses below; which he did in Archangel after a rush trip by sledge to St. Petersburg to obtain official clearance papers from the new American Embassy.

Racing against the oncoming Russian winter that would blockade the harbor with a wall of ice, Captain Clark loaded his ship with whatever cargo was available for the return trip. But he still found time to purchase presents for his wife and daughters, among them an ornate samovar. Included in his cargo was wide Russian timber, not in great demand in wooded New England, which he stored until 1799 for building his new house on Stony Brook Road. That house still stands there on a slight rise, very much the residence of a successful sea captain and large enough to accommodate the traditional huge family. (The house remains in the Clark family as the residence of the Reverend and Mrs Richard Kroeger, Mrs Kroeger being the former Catherine Clark.)

Although often at sea, Captain Clark was very much involved in community affairs. He was one of the outspoken advocates of dividing Harwich into two towns, and the documents creating Brewster from North Harwich were signed in Captain Clark's parlor in 1803.

Captain Clark was then asked to serve as a representative to the General Court in Boston and did so until 1812. During the War of 1812, he served as one of Brewster's selectmen and when that war threatened the financial welfare of the citizenry, Captain Clark joined with Selectman Thomas Seabury to petition President Madison to seek a speedy termination to the conflict. Theirs was a community of seafaring men and their livelihood depended on unrestricted movement on the seas.

When, as he feared, the British appeared off the coast, Commodore R.D. Raggett of His Britannic Majesty's Ship Spencer threatened to destroy the lucrative salt works and block all shipping unless paid a "contribution" of $4000, an enormous sum in those days. After an attempt to bargain failed, the ransom was paid by Captain Clark, Mr Seabury and Elkanah Freeman. When they asked the neighboring towns for money to help defray this expense, they were refused.

After a profitable and respectable career involving many voyages to Europe, Captain Clark retired to his farm and his family. However, his friend and fellow captain Elijah Cobb had completed an unusually lucrative voyage in 1818 to the west coast of Africa. He urged Captain Clark and two other Brewster masters, David Nickerson and Joseph Mayo, to go as supercargo on his next voyage. Captain Clark was reluctant, but Captain Cobb offered great inducements (according to the account written by Augusta Mayo, his granddaughter), and he agreed.

On February 14, Captain Cobb wrote his wife that Captain Clark had died and Captain Nickerson was very ill. He hoped to send the letter with a schooner leaving in a few days for Boston. On February 18, he wrote again:

"Esq. Clark has paid the debt of nature, it was my task to close his Eyes the 11 instant after a sickness of 8 days...Capt Nickerson was very sick on board this ship, but his fever having turned, it was the advice of Every One to send him to sea, that a change of air would have a good effect; I accordingly did, but fear he never will reach America..."

The Nickerson family genealogy reports that David Nickerson died on the schooner Hope on February 26, 1819.

On February 20, Captain Cobb wrote again to his wife: "Alas Alas, Capt. Mayo is gone; an unfavourable turn in his disorder was his passport to (I trust) realms of blessedness."

After the sickness and deaths, Captain Cobb had his ship washed with vinegar and lime juice and fumigated for 24 hours with strong charcoal fires in the hold and between decks. J. Henry Sears in his book Brewster Ship Masters writes that when the ship returned, it was sunk at the end of the wharf to prevent contagion in the city of Boston.

And that was the last recorded information about Captain Isaac Clark. He had certainly earned a memorial.

Young Isaac followed his father's choice of career and shipped out at the age of 16. His voyages were mostly to South America, except during the War of 1812 when he escaped from a British ship by swimming ashore to Newfoundland, where he remained for two years. In December of 1816, he was second mate under one Captain De Frees on the brig Sally Barker which sailed to Rio de Janeiro.

On this trip he took a boat and went up the river after molasses. The tide went out and he was stranded; he had to walk back, barely reaching the port in time to rejoin his ship.

After another successful trip to Rio, he sailed again with Captain De Frees on May 23, 1818, bound for Havana. Eleven days out, they were shipwrecked. The crew reached port safely, but a few days after their arrival, Isaac Clark jr was taken with yellow fever and died on January 8, 1818.

Mrs Clark lived out the rest of a long life in the family home and was buried under the simple white stone found in the Reed's garden. It recognized not only her, but also her husband and son. When it was replaced by her son Strabo, the unfortunate Isaac jr once again was cast adrift.

There is no suggestion in family papers of why his name was removed. There is no answer as to why the gravestone, when replaced, was taken all the way to East Orleans.

However, with the original stone now situated in the garden of Captain Clark's house on Stony Brook Road, Isaac jr at last has his memorial.

Seagull

I view with a pair of binoculars the white, wide spread hovering over the shore, and hear its wild, throaty cry, nearer than its enlargement, and farther than when I remove the binoculars from in front of my eyes, farther yet than if I turn them and look from the opposite end, infinitely far and peculiarly close the white hollow cartilaginous throat cries again as though it were a narrow aperture, a keyhole for the whistling speed of the wind.

Nothing holds me a Hauptman in the night, buried in a black hole of fear seemingly close to doom wind shaking thin walls of my room.

Nothing holds me then,

There is no suggestion in family papers of why his name was removed. There is no answer as to why the gravestone, when replaced, was taken all the way to East Orleans.

However, with the original stone now situated in the garden of Captain Clark's house on Stony Brook Road, Isaac jr at last has his memorial.

The Lost Gravestone & The Forgotten Son

By Carol Snowden

The slab was only five or six inches below the surface of the ground. Mrs John Reed of East Orleans had uncovered a portion of it while pulling weeds. She and her husband, curious to see what they had discovered, cleared the rest with a shovel and when the stone was lifted and turned over, they were startled to find it was a gravestone. The chiseled inscription reads:

*Temperance Clark
wife of Isaac Clark,
died Oct. 12, 1859,
aged 95 years.
Isaac Clark,
died at Princess Island,
coast of Africa, Feb. 1819,
aged 57 years.
Isaac Clark, Jr.
died at Havana,
July 8, 1818,
aged 24 years.*

With the help of Charles Thomsen, president of the Orleans Historical Society, the Reeds learned that the gravestone had come from Brewster and that using old gravestones as garden stepping stones had been a fairly common practice on Cape Cod at one time. During Victorian days, families frequently replaced modest old markers with elaborate memorials to show their ancestral pride and then discarded the simpler versions.

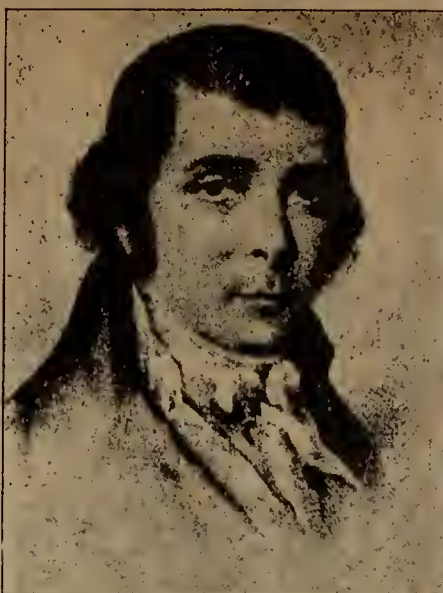

The stone that had replaced the one the Reeds found stands grandly today in the Lower Road cemetery in Brewster. However, seven years after the Reeds' discovery, many questions still remain. Not the least of these is the question, what was the old stone doing so far from home? It weighs around 500 pounds. Transporting such a heavy slab more than seven miles, from Brewster to East Orleans, could have been no easy task as the Reeds and others discovered when the gravestone was moved again to be rededicated on the grounds of the original Clark home on Stony Brook Road in Brewster August 18, 1981.

The mystery deepens even further, however, on reading the new inscription on the replacement stone. The elaborate new memorial was erected by, or for, another son of Captain Clark, Strabo, in 1869 and it reads as follows:

*CLARK
Isaac Clark
1762 Died on African Coast 1819
Temperance, His Wife
1764-1859*

*—
Strabo Clark
1801-1869
Adeline, His Wife
1814-1860*

The inscription is puzzling on a couple of counts. For one, town records show that Isaac Clark was born in the year 1761. Surely the family would have known that. Why make him a year younger? More mysterious, why had Isaac jr been removed from the family record? Even supposing this was Strabo's own monument, why eliminate his brother's only link to posterity? And what had happened to Isaac jr in Havana?

Captain Isaac Clark.

FROM BREWSTER SHIPMASTERS (1906), BY J. HENRY SEARS

Some of the Clark descendants have wondered if Isaac jr might have been involved in the so-called Triangle Trade, in which the transportation of slaves from Africa to plantations in the U.S. southland was an important and lucrative leg. (In the Triangle Trade, ships carried raw cotton from the south to New England mills and then New England cloth, molasses and other trade goods to Africa from whence the live cargo was unloaded to complete the cycle.)

Perhaps this was why the Clarks sought to erase all signs of Isaac jr from the family annals. After all, this was 1869 and memories of the recent bloody Civil War were painfully vivid to many New England families. Even though this nation had banned participation in the slave trade in 1808, Isaac jr was old enough to have plied the infamous Triangle Trade before his premature demise.

As for Captain Clark's own reputation, records show that he was one of Brewster's leading citizens, a man of character. He, like his four brothers, had chosen the sea as a career—he was the sixth and last in a line of Clark sea captains—and his voyages had been mostly to Europe until the final fatal journey.

During the Revolutionary War, Captain Clark had been a privateer and was taken prisoner three times by the British. After the war, when he had returned to the more prosaic seafaring life, he wanted his to be the first ship to display the new American flag in the White Sea of Russia,

Assessing Needs & Setting Goals

Parent Mary Levy and teacher Kathie Smith, co-chairmen of the Harwich Early Childhood Council.

TCC/LUNDEEN

Harwich, like Eastham, was awarded a $2500 state Early Childhood Needs Assessment Grant in July. The application was initiated by Kathie Smith, early education coordinator and kindergarten teacher at Harwich Elementary School for the past 15 years. Having received full support from Principal Paul Koulouris, she says, she and then-assistant principal Marcia Hekking wrote up the grant application in their own time—a process which was new to her, she says, and therefore time-consuming.

"Although it's coming from the school, it's a community-oriented project," Mrs. Smith says. After the grant was awarded, letters were sent inviting interested persons from all sectors of the community to be members of the Harwich Early Childhood Council (HECC). "We have representatives on the council from every type of child care provider, we have parents, former and current teachers, and one retired person." Of the 40 or so members, she says, 25 are very active.

Mary Larrivee, hired by both towns as consultant in conducting their needs assessment and writing up their implementation grant application, described her first meeting with the HECC as "very encouraging. People were incredibly enthusiastic and they came ready to work."

The HECC has five subcommittees working on the following goals:

- A needs assessment of the community, to go out in January to parents and providers, asking what type of care is needed, and what materials would be helpful.
- A survey of all available resources.
- A survey of all help available to those with special needs.
- A teachers' needs assessment.

* A survey of all screening tools available, and possibly a newsletter.

Once the results of the needs assessment survey, currently being drawn up with Mrs. Larrivee's assistance, are in the data will be compiled, and the HECC will discuss the results. Then in March a grant application will be written up for state funds to act on the findings of the needs assessment. "Competition will be tough next year for implementation grant funds, and you never know how much money will be available until the spring," Mrs. Larrivee notes.

"You can apply for up to $100,000, but we're told it will be $80,000 at most," Mrs. Smith says, adding that the funds, if received, could be used in any number of ways. "You might use the grant to provide day care, or afterschool care, or tuition for kids to nursery school. We truly have no preconceptions."

One possible area of need, she says, may be continuity of care for young children of working parents. Some of them must be dropped off at another family's house if the parent leaves early for work, she says, then after school they must go somewhere else until the parent gets home. That is a lot for a small child to deal with in the course of a day, she believes.

"Space needs will also be looked at in our survey—employers who might provide space for child care. Another possible need is for a resource person with all information about available options."

"Maybe the greatest thing that can come out of this will be if all of us—preschool and private providers and parents—can develop common goals, and some sort of continuity, to help us all work together."

The public is welcome to attend the HECC's monthly meetings, Mrs. Smith says. The next one will be December 10 at 7 pm in the media center at the elementary school.

their own employees' day care needs. We want to show them that if it (a child care center) is there, it will help them to attract and keep employees."

Both women believe that a awareness of the issue is rising, in the business sector as well as in other areas of the community, and they point to the presence on the ECEC of representatives from many agencies and different age groups. Their cause, they say, has been aided by the Lower-Outer Cape Health and Human Services Coalition's choice of child care as its focal issue for the year.

In addition, they say, Wellfleet is represented on the ECEC and the plan is to include that town's needs in their search for solutions. Mrs. Sparrow notes that grant applications which take a regional approach, as opposed to limiting their plans to a single town, tend to receive favorable consideration from the state.

"It may not look like we've come a long way, but in another way we really have," Mrs. Sparrow says, reflecting back on the progress made since that day at the beach in the summer of 1987. "All it took was for some parents to get together."

"And we've learned a lot," Mrs. Berg adds. "One day we'll be cutting the ribbon on our brand new building, drinking champagne...and our own children will be too old to use it!"

The Lost Gravestone & The Forgotten Son

By Carol Snowdon

The slab was only five or six inches below the surface of the ground. Mrs John Reed of East Orleans had uncovered a portion of it while pulling weeds. She and her husband, curious to see what they had discovered, cleared the rest with a shovel and when the stone was lifted and turned over, they were startled to find it was a gravestone. The chiseled inscription reads:

*Temperance Clark
wife of Isaac Clark,
died Oct. 12, 1859,
aged 95 years.
Isaac Clark,
died at Princess Island,
coast of Africa, Feb. 1819,
aged 57 years.
Isaac Clark, Jr.
died at Havana,
July 8, 1818,
aged 24 years.*

With the help of Charles Thomsen, president of the Orleans Historical Society, the Reeds learned that the gravestone had come from Brewster and that using old gravestones as garden stepping stones had been a fairly common practice on Cape Cod at one time. During Victorian days, families frequently replaced modest old markers with elaborate memorials to show their ancestral pride and then discarded the simpler versions.

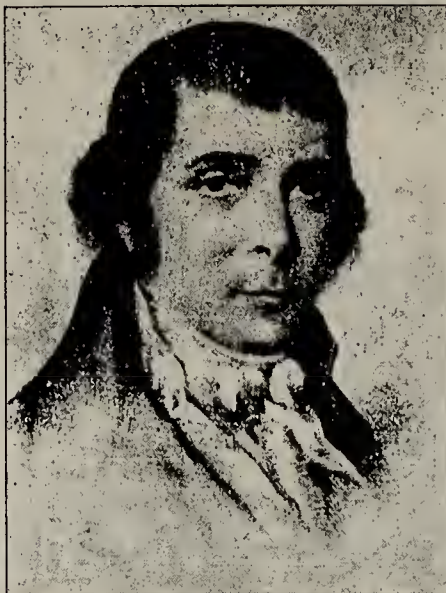

The stone that had replaced the one the Reeds found stands grandly today in the Lower Road cemetery in Brewster. However, seven years after the Reeds' discovery, many questions still remain. Not the least of these is the question, what was the old stone doing so far from home? It weighs around 500 pounds. Transporting such a heavy slab more than seven miles, from Brewster to East Orleans, could have been no easy task as the Reeds and others discovered when the gravestone was moved again to be rededicated on the grounds of the original Clark home on Stony Brook Road in Brewster August 18, 1981.

The mystery deepens even further, however, on reading the new inscription on the replacement stone. The elaborate new memorial was erected by, or for, another son of Captain Clark, Strabo, in 1869 and it reads as follows:

*CLARK
Isaac Clark
1762 Died on African Coast 1819
Temperance, His Wife
1764-1859*

*Strabo Clark
1801-1869
Adeline, His Wife
1814-1860*

The inscription is puzzling on a couple of counts. For one, town records show that Isaac Clark was born in the year 1761. Surely the family would have known that. Why make him a year younger? More mysterious, why had Isaac jr been removed from the family record? Even supposing this was Strabo's own monument, why eliminate his brother's only link to posterity? And what had happened to Isaac jr in Havana?

Captain Isaac Clark.

Some of the Clark descendants have wondered if Isaac jr might have been involved in the so-called Triangle Trade, in which the transportation of slaves from Africa to plantations in the U.S. southland was an important and lucrative leg. (In the Triangle Trade, ships carried raw cotton from the south to New England mills and then New England cloth, molasses and other trade goods to Africa from whence the live cargo was unloaded to complete the cycle.)

Perhaps this was why the Clarks sought to erase all signs of Isaac jr from the family annals. After all, this was 1869 and memories of the recent bloody Civil War were painfully vivid to many New England families. Even though this nation had banned participation in the slave trade in 1808, Isaac jr was old enough to have plied the infamous Triangle Trade before his premature demise.

As for Captain Clark's own reputation, records show that he was one of Brewster's leading citizens, a man of character. He, like his four brothers, had chosen the sea as a career—he was the sixth and last in a line of Clark sea captains—and his voyages had been mostly to Europe until the final fatal journey.

During the Revolutionary War, Captain Clark had been a privateer and was taken prisoner three times by the British. After the war, when he had returned to the more prosaic seafaring life, he wanted his to be the first ship to display the new American flag in the White Sea of Russia,

In his Dexter line, There is an Ephraim⁴
(1) m. to a Martha Clark-3, July 1735. He⁷ was born 1711 to Benjamin³ ~~Clark~~ ^{in Rochester} + Sarah³ Arnold³ and was a contemporary of your Samuel⁴. I can't find Martha Clark's parents anywhere - do you have any Clarks in the Rochester area (or Falmouth) who might be her parents.
Would love to be able to trace her back! No hurry; I've been looking for a year or more!
Looking forward to seeing you at the next meeting - Thelma

Dear Margaret,

I have been thinking if you and hoping you are getting rested, and many details taken care of. I know these must be difficult days.

The genealogical questions are not important. One was;
was Samuel ⁴ Dexter the son of Philip and Alice Allen? In the Dexter general. Book we have, no date is given, but it says Philip ³ of Falmouth had 5 children, names unknown to author (plus 4 whose names are given). Sidney is a Dexter from Thomas down to his great, grandmother. He also has the Samuel ⁴ Swift m. Ruth Hatch line you listed in your chart.

Dear Mrs. Bready,

Thank you for your help in trying to locate the ancestors of William Lawrence Colby.
Unfortunately, my mother-in-law cannot be of any further assistance in this endeavor, as she has no living relatives on that side of her family.

I guess my family will just have to forget about proving our ancestry. It just wasn't meant to be.

Thank you again for your help.

Sincerely,

Kerry Sullivan

Dear Mrs. Bready:

Your name was given to me by the Sturgis Library. I hope you can help me or be able to steer me in the right direction with my genealogical question.

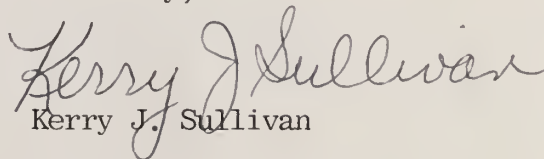

My husband's mother, Dolores Colby Sullivan, always heard as a youngster that an ancestor of hers founded Colby College in Waterville, Maine. Because I have a daughter with Cystic Fibrosis, and medical bills are getting worse all the time, I was hoping to be able to prove our ancestry and be able to get some financial assistance for my son when he reaches college age.

All my mother-in-law knows about the family is her father's name (George Colby), date of birth (11/17/1898), and date of his death (12/4/66). His father was William Lawrence Colby (also born in N.Y.C.) and he was probably born in the 1860's. He was a New York City Policeman.

If you could help me in any way, I would very much appreciate it.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Kerry J. Sullivan

COLBY COLLEGE

Colby College, coeducational, nonsectarian institution of higher learning, situated in Waterville, Maine. It was known originally as THE MAINE LITERARY and THEOLOGICAL INSTITUTION, and was chartered under the auspices of the Baptist Church, by the Massachusetts State Legislature in 1813, seven years before Maine was admitted to the Union as a separate State. Two years after its opening in 1813, the name of the institution was changed to Waterville College. In 1867 this name was changed to Colby University in honor of Gardner Colby, a Maine industrialist, who granted it a large endowment. It was renamed Colby College in 1899. The college provides courses of study in the liberal arts leading to the degree of A.B. In a recent year student enrollment totaled about 1650, and the faculty numbered about 75.

Francis²Small bap. 6 Oct. 1625 St. Mary's Parish, Bideford, co. Devon, England.
 d. ca 1713 Truro, Mass. In 1648 he was in Dover, N.H. and in Falmouth, Maine in 1657, later removing to Kittery, Maine.

His honest dealings with the Indians won him the confidence of the Chief with whom he traded. When some of the Indians burned his home, the Chief deeded him the famous Ossipee lands containing 256,000 acres. The old deed dated 22 Nov. 1668 with the signature of a turtle is still preserved.

Francis² sold part of this land but reserved for himself Ossipee proper which included the entire northern part of York County, Maine. He was known in America and England as "the great landowner." Cornish, Maine was originally called Francisborough, surveyed in 1772 & named for him. He became interested in the fishing trade at the Isle of Shoals, Maine and probably also at Plymouth Colony, Mass., where he spent his last years.

8. HANNAH, b. July 3, 1692(A); d. Mar. 7, 1702-3 (A)

*It is cert. from deeds that Sarah Osgood, b. 1652-3, was in 1700 and 1708, w. of John³ Colby, and that she was d. in 1716. The only doubt is whether Sarah Eldridge and Sarah Osgood were the same person. The rec's may be reconciled in 3 ways. 1. Per. Eldridge should read Osgood. 2. Per. Sarah Osgood m. (1) a Eldridge, of whom we have no other rec., and ed. John Colby. 3. The two may be distinct persons, as given above, which seems ~~xxxx~~ most prob., tho we hv no trace of the fam. of Sarah Eldridge. Wm. & Anne Eldred, or Eldridge, of Yarmouth, had dau. Sarah, b. Oct. 10 1650; but she was 6 yrs. older than J.C., & we know of no intercourse bet. Salis. Y Yarm. - there was a John Eldridge of Hampton in 1640, who appar. soon d. or moved away) ^{another puzzle???}

Hey, have a heart - you say please, please, please, copy any Colby name and all accompanying information with it. I'm getting bleary-eyed. This should keep you busy until you get the 2 or 3 Colby books from NEHG Soc.

No mention of Colby college - names you ment. are not in book - too new or young or however you put it.

State Library has been closed since April of 1986 due to asbestos problems. If and when it gets open again is everybody's question. I'll be so out of practice will have to learn all ~~over~~ over again how to find things, no doubt. Besides finding a ride down there as you know I don't drive that far alone.

Having a hard time trying to get the "yard work" done. Didn't get the north forty cleared much since 1985. And boy, how it has grown. A tangled mess of little trees, bushes, vines - you name it - including some lush poison ivy!
And to add to the misery I've been stung at least 4 times by ground wasps and a couple of times by some other equally nasty critters. Been to doctor three times and had to buy some very expensive antibiotic pills (10 day supply) and last time he gave me a four day supply of same stuff, only in powder form that has to have water added to it. And then last Sat. afternoon I was down in the brook bed, cutting some extremely tall grass - and a rock fell off the wall and hit me - but good - a 3-point landing, head, right arm and right leg. Knocked me down and there I was. Had to get the rock lifted enough so I could pull my leg out from under, crawled up onto the grass and just laid there for awhile to get my breath back, etc. Leg was so lame Sun. I just goofed off and didn't do any work at all. Ditto on Mon. except went to laundromat and did ironing after I got home. Back to work on Tues. but not in the brook area. Yesterday I worked all day and even mowed the "north forty". Today was another work day.
I'm still lame. Leg is still sore, badly bruised. Arm fairly good. Head OK.
(Where there's no brains, of course.) If I can keep at it, I may even get the place cleared and looking decent once more. Had help Sat. afternoon which was much appreciated. But can't expect help like that very often.

Haven't heard a thing from Marilyn. Is the new baby OK? Or like Mikey? I called her about a week or so before she was born (the baby, I mean) but wonder why M. hasn't called back. Hope everything is fine.

Love — Alice

MRS. RUSSELL H. LOWD
28 DENNETT STREET
PORTLAND, MAINE 04102

Nov. 12 1979

Dear Mrs. Brady,

Thank you for your letter about the Cole family of Eastham and Plymouth. I have been trying to find the names of John - Job - Daniel Cole's parents for so long, also, Daniel's wife Ruth (?), my grandparents had a copy of a coat-of-arms granted to Richard Cole, Esq. of Shenley-hall in the co. of Hertford, Eng. by John Borough Garter on 27 Nov. 1640. (Richard Cole d. in 1653, - Shenley-hall was sold in 1668. A Richard Cole was in this country for a short time in 1630's.) There must be some connection. (my records say that James Cole (Coles Hill, Ply) was the son of Sir W.M.)

I was sure I could find the answer in "Genealogical Gleanings in England" by Henry F. Waters - he has so many "COLE" wills - also, "CLARK" another Eng. - mass. puzzle

Both Job & Daniel Cole had so many descendants - it is hard to understand why their birth records haven't been found.

Thank you again.

Hope we will meet next summer.

Sincerely

Arthur Lowd

 "Early Settlers
 of Eastham"

It appears he was a servant to some one of the early planters at Plymouth during his minority. First ment. in Plymouth Records in 1633. He was a tax-payer in 1634, and in 1638 he had 40 acres of land granted to him on the north side of Fresh Lake. 1640 - surveyor of Plymouth; 1641 & '42 - constable. In 1645 he went to "Nausett" and in 1647 was deputy to the Colony Court from that place. He was a deputy or representative 1651, '52, '58, '59, '61-'64, '66 & '71. In 1648 he was surveyor of "Nausett" and that year appointed to sell wine and to be a "Register Keeper". In 1656 he was a grand juror for Eastham and a selectman in 1666 & 1671. In 1664 he was appointed to solemnize marriages in Eastham succeeding Mr. John Doane. He was one of the Colonial auditors in 1659 and 1661. He was one of the five chosen by the town of Eastham "to survey all the lands granted or laid out to the several inhabitants of the township" in 1659. As Mr. Cooke was not one of those called Purchasers or Old Comers, he was often favored by special grants from the court, of land in various parts of the colony, upon his application. In 1658, with Mr. John Doane, Richard Higgins, Richard Sparrow and John Smalley, he had land granted between Bridgewater and Weymouth. In 1662, as one of the old servants, he had land allowed him. In 1665, he had a large tract granted him at Eastham, in that part now South Orleans, but then known as Pottonumegnot, which he purchased of the Indians the same year, and in 1669 exchanged it for land in another part of the town, with Major John Freeman

It was on this tract the first settlement in this part of Eastham was attempted.

LCC-33 ^{at Plymouth} M. 16 Sept. 1635 - Mrs. Elizabeth Deane, widow of Stephen Deane, an early resident of Plymouth, who came in the "Ann", in 1623, [and had Ann², who m. Mark² Snow; Josiah², who m. Deborah³ Hopkins^(Giles), and Bethiah² who m. Joseph¹ ~~the~~ Harding.]

[the way that is written one could almost believe the ch. mentioned were Stephen's ch. - MEB. note]

LCC-33 Josiah's will was exhibited at Plymouth Court for probate 29th Oct. and letters testamentary were issued to wid. Elizabeth. The widow, by her former husband, Stephen Deane, had several children, among whom were Elizabeth, who m. Wm. Trowing, the first of the name in Eastham; Susannah, who m. Joseph Rogers and Stephen Snow and Miriam, who when aged, m. John Wing, Sen. of Harwich. It is quite certain that Mrs. Corke was somewhat older than her last husband.

CROSBY

Simon Crosby, the Emigrant
by Eleanor D. Crosby - 1914

John Crosby, birthplace unknown; born about 1440; d. 1502 married before 1470 - Name of wife, place of birth and death unknown.
Children: 1. John b. about 1470 ^{rem. from Stillingfleet & thought to have lands in Holme-on-Spalding-Moor in 1511}
2. Emma living 1502
3. Agnes " "
4. Robert b. about 1475 ^{resided in parish of Alne}
5. Richard b. about 1478 ^{a nephew of Alne when he d. 1559}
6. William ^{became a priest at York & died 1512}
7. Miles b. about 1483 ^{Thomas b. 1510 William time & place of d. unknown}

The will of John Crosby of Stillingfleet, dated 20 Apr. 1502
The church of Stillingfleet is an ancient stone edifice showing features of the Norman, Early English and decorated Gothic styles.
The parish of Alne is divided into 5 townships or villages of Aldwark, Flawick, Thordorpe, Tolleiton and Youton.
Of the ancestry of John Crosby nothing has been discovered, but there can be no doubt that 1 of his ancestors over a century before his birth took his name from one of the Crosby places in Northern England, and most likely from Crosby in Yorkshire, only 18 miles north of Alne.

Thomas Crosby, son of Miles, b. abt. 1510; d. in 1558/9
M. abt 1542 - widow Jannett Bell (wid of John Bell) Sto d. 1568/9
Ch. Miles b. ca 1543; d. 1573 at early age of abt. 30 yrs.
Anthony b. ca 1545 in Holme-on-Spalding-Moor M. abt. 1570 Alison — Reph b. abt. 1547; d. in spring of 1570 unmar.
Nicholas b. abt. 1550

After his death his widow Jannett rem. from the hamlet of Burser in parish of Holme-on-Spalding-Moor into the adjoining township or manor of Gribthorpe in the parish of Flawick. This parish comprised no less than 9 townships or manors. Jannett surv. her husband about 10 yrs. and in 1568 or 1569 leaving a will - Complete copy in book.

Ch. of Anthony Crosby: 1. Ellen, b. abt. 1571; m. abt. 1586 George Westobie, of Welton, Co. York, surv. her husband 5 ch.
2. Thomas Crosby b. Holme-on-Spalding-Moor abt. 1575

Simon Crosby (son of Thomas & grandson of Anthony) Thomas & Simon were influenced by 2 ministers to come to N.E. [Rev. Thomas Shephard & Rev. Ezekiel Rogers. Both of these men were in, there to be but a Rev. Rogers ch. d. in infancy.]

Thomas Crosby b. in Holme-on-Spalding-Moor, County York, Eng.
abt. 1575; m. there 19 Oct. 1600 to Jane Lotheron (Parish Reg. at Holme) bapt. 4 Nov 1581 (Parish Register of Holme) died in Rowley, Mass. 1662. (Essex Institute records, Salem, Mass.) He died in May 1661 ^{at age 85 yrs.} ^{June 6 May 1661}
Jane his widow, d. in Rowley, Mass. ^{at age 80 yrs.} May 1662

His Chis

1. Anthony b. abt. 1602 in Holme; d. ^{abt. age 23 yrs.} June 1632 in Holme. ^{unn. bur. at Holme-on-Spalding-Moor}
2. Thomas b. abt. 1604 " " d. Dec. 1658 in Holme.
3. William b. abt. 1606 in " d. June 1636 in Holme ^{only son, son with} ^{accepted by wife, the}
4. Simon b. abt. 1608 in " d. Sept. 1639 in Cambridge, Mass.

Hence Jane Lotheron was dau. of William + Constance (Lambert) Lotheron her fa. being the wealthiest resident of the parish. and (except Gabriel St. Quentin) the ~~two~~ 2 sons-in-law Thomas Crosby and William Millington ranked next in wealth

Simon preceded his fa. to N.E., coming in 1635. Altho exact time of Thomas Crosby coming to N.E. has not been proven, he certainly came before 1640 & was prob. a member of the company who & w/ Rev. Ezekiel Rogers in the autumn of 1638. He prob. on arrival went to live w/ his son Simon in Cambridge. It seems likely Thomas res. in the household of his dau.
in-law the widow of Simon Crosby until she was m. in 1645 to her second husband, Rev. William Thompson of Braintree, Mass. While she then went to reside taking her ch. w/ her. Thomas got the Cary Latham homestead on the present Ash Street. Here he res. a few yrs. but the death of his pastor Rev.
Thomas Shepard & his friendship for Rev. Ezekiel Rogers & his large circle of friends of old England living at Rowley, Mass. evidently induced his removal there where he remained the rest of his life.

Thomas became one of the handful of students to gain admittance to prestigious Harvard College. He wasn't a brilliant student, however, and when he graduated in 1653 he was last in his class of eight. He became a minister in Eastham, Mass., but his salary was small - so he became a merchant on the side. He sold liquor, gunpowder and ammunition - apparently preaching to people about hell & brimstone on Sunday, then on the other six days of the week selling them the means to get there!

Nathaniel⁶(3)

Nathaniel⁵ went to sea shortly after the Revolutionary War broke out. In 1775 he was assigned to the sailing ship Independence, which guarded Boston Harbor. In 1776, he and a handful of fellow sailors were ordered to sail up the rocky coast in a tiny sloop to Casco Bay, Maine, to defend a bank of cannons against a British attack. But the weeks turned into months and no attack came. Lesser men would have gone home because as winter approached the voyage back to Boston became extremely dangerous - but Nathaniel and his crew mates stayed. When they decided to turn back, it was almost too late. The voyage back home became a frightening brush with death as severe storms constantly blew the little sloop against the rocky Maine coast - but they finally reached Boston. After the war Nathaniel became a church deacon.

Nathaniel 3d was a feisty chip captain who was still braving hazardous oceans at age 67. As a young man he established a prosperous shipping business along the Eastern Seaboard. But when the War of 1812 came along he willingly became a soldier - taking up arms at least three times to defend local towns. Nathaniel dropped his shipping business again at age 67 - when he packed up his family and sailed off to Oregon to begin a new life there. The 130-day voyage around Cape Horn was filled with danger. But when Nathaniel reached Oregon, he stayed only long enough to make sure shipping businesses started by his three sons were going well - then incredibly, the independent old salt turned around and made the same trip back! His 3 sons - Clanrick, Alfred and Nathaniel 4th - stayed behind in Oregon.

CROSBY

Nathaniel made the treacherous journey around Cape Horn four years before his father. Upon arriving in the wild Oregon territory, he started a lumber shipping business. When the Mexican War broke out in 1846, he was commissioned by the U.S. government to ferry supplies to settlers along the West Coast - dodging Mexican patrol boats along the way. The government feared that if the settlers were starved out, all claim to California and Oregon would be lost forever. But by successfully supplying the coastal settlers with provisions, Nathaniel played a critical role in securing U.S. claim to what is now California and Oregon. After the war Nathaniel's business flourished. But in 1852 he made a business trip to Hong Kong and apparently got wanderlust - for afterward he abandoned his business and took his family with him on a round-the-world voyage. It ended in Hong Kong where he settled down again as a merchant.

Schooled in HongKong, Nathaniel 5th learned to speak Chinese. But when his father died, he gave up his life of ease for the frontier life of America's West Coast. In 1860 he arrived in Washington and went to work in a logging mill owned by his uncle Clanrick Crosby. He later became a successful merchant. But then he sank his money into a steamship business - and it folded. He was reduced to taking a job as postmaster in Olympia, Wash., where he died.

Harry Lowe Crosby converted to Catholicism, his wife's religion, changing the family's faith after centuries of fiery Protestantism. He was a bookkeeper at the court house in Tacoma, Washington, but later moved to Spokane when he lost his job. He became a bookkeeper in a Spokane brewery. Harry liked to gamble occasionally, and loved music - he was always playing a mandolin, singing, or listening to records at home.

THE ALBERT CROSBY MANSION, in this circa 1900 photograph, illustrates the type of classical revival design that was popular in the late 19th Century. Until recently a girls' summer camp, it will become a condominium while preserving the elegant exterior.

Crosby mansion houses tale of 19th century success story

By CHARLES KOEHLER
Staff Writer

EAST BREWSTER — The days of 19th century romances, of young men going West to make their fortunes, of quickly accumulated wealth, of pretty wives, elegant mansions, tours to Europe, majestic and opulent living have long been relegated to the pages of history and Gothic novels.

The evidence of those long ago days often remains, usually in the grandiose homes with which these merchant princes surrounded themselves. Such is the Crosby mansion on Crosby Lane, built in 1888 by Albert Crosby.

Long used as a girls' summer school, that enterprise is ended, and the huge, classical structure, a complex of revival design, will shortly be converted into condominiums.

A Brewster landmark, it was opened for the final time in late August for public viewing under the auspices of the Brewster Historical Society.

The story of Albert Crosby, born in Brewster in 1823, was not completely known until quite recently, but genealogical research now has filled in the picture — including the fact he actually built the mansion for his second wife.

Crosby, whose forebears are legion in Cape history, did exactly as many had done — he went to sea. He waited a while longer than had been the custom, for he was a teenager when he left for Boston and sailed between that port and the British West Indies.

How well he made out is not recorded, but he evidently learned plenty about merchandising and the profits that were to be made at a time when the horizons of the young nation were rapidly expanding.

At 25, in 1848 and about the era of the great California gold rush, young Albert went as far west as Chicago. He stopped there, taking his young wife with him, a Margaret Henderson from West Roxbury whom he'd married the previous year.

Crosby had good reason to stop in Chicago rather than trust his luck in the search for gold. There were Crosby relatives already in the thriving metropolis.

He joined them in business and soon was making his fortune in the tea and liquor business. The growth of the railroads westward, too, attracted his money and he prospered mightily.

Research uncovered only one small "blight" to his success when it was discovered that his Brewster mansion was not, as had been thought, built for the girl from West Roxbury. She did not like the wild hustle and bustle of Chicago and longed for her West Roxbury origin. So much so that she went back and Crosby divorced her. That was in 1872.

He didn't stay single long, however, for the same year he married a girl named Martha who was just 28. Little is really known about her except that she was extremely attractive.

While Crosby was 49 years old, his pretty second wife and he lead a sumptuous existence in Chicago's social life. And, as was the custom, toured Europe every year for the next 10 years. They called it "honeymooning" in Europe, which gives a clue to the state of their wedded bliss.

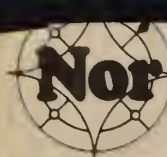

But Crosby began to long for his Cape Cod homeland. Having made his fortune before and during the Civil War — some say by selling alcohol to the government — the couple decided to return to his birthplace to live out their days in luxury.

The great Crosby mansion was built in 1888 especially for his "bride" of 16 years and was created around his parents home, literally wrapping the original modest cottage within the huge architectural structure that was embellished with four great chimneys, towers and turrets, a great arched porch and an imposing entrance.

Inside, it was filled with all manner of furniture and works of arts they had purchased on the many trips to Europe. It was named "Tawasentha" — an Indian name that sketchy research concludes was a Western Indian name referring to some valley that had been admired by the Crosbys while they lived out West.

The great house is no longer open for public view and now only the local historical society has its records. Copies also are available in the local library. Albert Crosby died in 1906. A brief attempt by his first wife to claim the estate failed.

Many thanks for honoring my request for booklet #72 on the John Crowell family.
I was quite amazed to see the age of the booklet but delighted that you still had one.

My family has Rebecca Crowell Taylor's bible which goes back to 1853 and she kept wonderful records. Her father was James (1782) and mother was his 2nd wife Mercy (1799). The information that I have and the booklet information correct and bring me back to 1638!

I noticed on the next to the last page that there is also a Taylor Family booklet - #75. If you still have that one could you send it to me, also, as Rebecca Crowell married Shubel Taylor. He was born June 20, 1819 and died at sea on Nov. 28, 1857. Outside of that I don't any information about him but he may be in #75.

Please do this at your convenience. I have enclosed a donation to the Eastham Historical Society for the booklets, postage, etc.

Again, thank you so much for your effort on my behalf.

Sincerely,

Barbara Macy Meune
(Mrs. John Meune)

P.S. Excuse me for not addressing this to Miss/Mrs./Mr. but I wasn't sure

Hinman, Savage & Caelkins all mention a Samuel Colver who eloped in 1674 with Martha, the wife of John Fish & was not heard of again in those parts. A "Samuel Cullver" enlisted in King Philip's war & was prob. k. in the "Swamp Fight" in R.I., in 1675. It is quite possible that the recreant Samuel was identical with this soldier, which would account for his not being heard of again. But whether Samuel of Farmington was this man is not clear.

COLVER-CULVER GENEALOGY - DESCENDANTS OF EDWARD COLVER OF BOSTON, DEDHAM AND ROXBURY, MASSACHUSETTS, AND NEW LONDON, AND MYSTIC, CONNECTICUT
by Frederic Lathrop Colver - 1910

Edward Colver sailed from the port of London in 1635, in one of the ships which carried John Winthrop's company of emigrants to America, but so far the research has failed to reveal his parentage.

Among the very earliest records of the Puritan affairs, in the time worn documents of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, we find the name of Edward Colver on the original covenant entered into by members of the Colony at Boston for the settlement of "Contentment" which was changed to Dedham, Massachusetts, (September 8, 1636). At first there appears to have been a meeting, September 3, 1635, at the Court in Boston to consider the founding of a plantation on the Charles River. A second meeting is recorded August 18, 1636, and a third and final conference September 5, 1636. At last the covenant is signed, September 10, 1636, by Edward Colver and others who were the founders of Dedham, Massachusetts.

The name Dedham was taken from Dedham, Essex County, England. Dedham, Massachusetts, is about ten miles southwest from Boston on the Charles River. It was at the little settlement of Dedham where the first canal ever built in the United States was constructed about 1640. This canal was dug to make available the fall of sixty feet between the Charles and Neponset rivers. It was about a mile in length and connected the waters of Mother Brook, Charles and Neponset rivers at Dedham. There is a venerable oak tree still standing at Dedham which was an old tree in 1636. Its Indian name was "Tiot." It was at Dedham that the first white man was shot by an Indian in 1671, which started the King Philip War of 1675.

In all probability Edward Colver was a young man when he came with the Puritans from his home in England and settled in the Massachusetts Bay Colony, and later assisted in the founding of Dedham, for we find his marriage the second in the records of Dedham by the first town clerk, Edward Alleyn, September 19, 1638, to Ann Ellis (An Ellice) Ann Ellis was the daughter of John Ellis, one of the first settlers at Dedham. Reverend John Allin, who was the first pastor of the first church of Dedham, performed the ceremony.

In the early records of the early Connecticut settlement - beginning with Edward Colver, the Puritan, who came from the Dedham-Roxbury district of the Massachusetts Bay Colony to New London - extending over a period of nearly two hundred years, there are so many references to members of the Colver-Culver family that space here will not permit any detailed mention. In deeds for lands and property; in church and town records of births, marriages, and deaths; in registered lists of cattle marks; minutes of town meetings; in the chronicles of the assemblies of the Colony; in the Colonial War books, etc., it is evident that the early descendants of the family were most numerous, active and public spirited. Shortly after the American Revolution the family began to scatter more generally and seek homes in other states, principally to the west of Connecticut, so that it is now no longer possible to speak of the family as "of Connecticut." As an illustration of how the Colver-Culver descendants have scattered mention can be made of towns bearing the name of Culver in Colorado, Indiana, Kansas, Michigan, New Jersey and Texas, also Culverton, Georgia.

Americans bearing the name of Colver or Culver are undoubtedly all descendants of the first ancestor, Edward Colver, the Puritan, who came from England as a member of the Mass. Bay Colony about 1635. On the original covenant at Boston, Sept. 10, 1636, for the settlement of Dedham, Edward Colver signs his name as "Colver." It is also Colver in the Dedham church and town records and on most of the family tombstones and in all the family papers of the earliest days. In the mention of Edward's marriage to Ann Ellis, the spelling is again Colver. The spelling Culver seems to have been first used by others in writing the name and by others in copying official town and county records. In Litchfield, Conn. where numerous branches of the family resided from 1723 until many years after the Revolutionary War, wherever an original deed is found the spelling is invariably Colver, but often in the copying or indexing of the deed the copyist has written Culver. In most of the instances where the name is Culver it is the spelling employed by persons not members of the family. After the removal of the family of Edward Colver to New London and after the descendants scattered to various parts of the United States, the name Culver has appeared to have been used more often.

This story is told in 1900 by a Vermont Culver, and will serve to illustrate: It was at the old Vermont farm; they were all seated comfortably about the kitchen stove on a January morning, the thermometer at twenty degrees below zero, the snow nearly four feet deep, the wind whistling a lively tune. "Johnny, just run out to the barn and find those old meal bags in the corner of the oat bin, I mean the very old bags at the bottom of the bin," said the grandfather, who always spelled it "Culver," and who was at that moment engaged in a rather heated argument with his brother, a man his senior by some fifteen years, and who, by the way, wrote his name "Colver."

The discussion grew warm and Johnny, not moving quickly enough to the door - mindful of the cold out-of-doors - received a sound box on his ear from his grandfather to hurry his steps to the barn. Johnny returned with the old bags, and stencilled thereon was the name "J. D. Colver." We should probably have never had this little family story but for Johnny's keen memory of that box on the ear, and a frost-bitten finger which bothered him for years - it is Johnny who tells this story.
